

Weidman to file charges against Frilot

BY AMY PICKICH

Waveland Ward 4 Alderman Stan Weidman said Wednesday he is pressing charges as a private citizen against Mayor Stella Frilot concerning an incident that happened after Wednesday's board of aldermen meeting.

After an alleged exchange of words between the two, Frilot threw a drink on the alderman.

Weidman went to the Waveland Police Department and requested they impound the wet shirt as evidence to be examined by a crime lab.

Weidman claimed the drink contained alcohol. "This woman is conducting a public meeting drinking," Weidman insisted.

Waveland police investigator Ricky Jacobs obtained the shirt from Weidman and sealed it with both their initials at Weidman's insistence. He said he could not make a determination as to what was on the shirt.

Jacobs said he had no further comment.

The sealed bag was then turned over to attorney Joseph G. Albe. "I was not drinking and I do not have a drinking problem," Frilot said. "I was drinking a 7-up."

"I opened the door and he shoved it against me, twice," she said. "After the meeting I was at the end of my endurance point."

United Way campaign surpasses $1 million

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

The United Way of South Mississippi surpassed its goal of $1 million by $16,000, Aletha Burge, executive director reported Friday.

"The reports from several campaigns arrived Friday morning pushing the campaign over our goal," an elated Burge said. There are still some 20, or so businesses in the midst of their campaigns and these should be reporting within the next few days.

The United Way of South Mississippi has 48 agencies and serves the counties of Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River.

The overall campaign chairman is Dennis Dollar of Gulfport. Respective county chairmen are: Clay Wagner of Hancock Bank in Hancock; Rick Stewart of South Central Bell, Harrison and Sandra Barker of State Farm Insurance, Pearl River.

"This is a big increase over the $838,000 the 1992 campaign raised and should enable the United Way to better support its agencies," Burge said.

Hilda Bourg, president of the United Way of South Mississippi, said, "This is an united effort on the part of the campaign chairs, volunteers, area operating committees, agencies and staff."

"The reaching of our goal could not have been possible without the tremendous support we have received from the contributors of Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties. Bourg added.

"The reward will be reflected by the needy of the three respective counties."

Waveland to help Audrey St. residents

BY AMY PICKICH

The Waveland Board of Aldermen approved a motion Wednesday to approach the supervisors in a matter concerning the maintenance of Audrey Street.

The action came after efforts by residents to get the city to lay some dirt to make the road safe and accessible to vehicles.

Resident Ernie Zimmerman said the city opened the street in 1988 and is responsible for maintaining it.

Zimmerman said the road is in such poor condition that it would be difficult for emergency vehicles, or any type vehicle, to pass. He also said some days mail and sanitation vehicles cannot access the road.

Mayor Stella Frilot said she thought the road needed more than just a few loads of dirt and the city did not have the equipment to do the job.

"I lay awake at night worrying about the safety of my family...if you could just get the dirt, we'll spread it," Zimmerman said.

Frilot told Zimmerman she would contact the county, who does have the equipment. She assured him that the city has gotten results from the supervisors in the past.

Alderman Stan Weidman, who questioned the city's responsibility and liability of the matter, said, "I hope this city is willing to meet the supervisors half-way."

School for Success ready to roll

BY AMY PICKICH

Hancock County schools superintendent Myrna Bourgeois told school board members Tuesday the "School for Success," the school system's alternative education program, is ready to begin Nov. 29 with a ceremony at 10 a.m.

Bourgeois said the program is beginning with a "bare-bone budget" in the old principal's home as vo-tech students work on another building for the school. Bourgeois said the building has a "good atmosphere" and "a sense of home life."

Bourgeois said a teacher training program will be conducted Nov. 22-23 to train teachers to recognize and help "at-risk students."

Alternative education teacher Elaine Lizaola told school board members Tuesday that a total of 30 students are enrolled, with two classes of 15. She said there is a waiting list for available slots.

GUNS AT SCHOOL

There was no mention of the Nov. 18 incident in which two Hancock High students were arrested by sheriff's department deputies in possession of two loaded guns at school.

After the meeting, Bourgeois said she discussed the situation with board members.

Annual Thanksgiving service set Nov. 23

The annual community Thanksgiving service has been set for Tuesday, Nov. 23 at 7 p.m. The service will be held this year at Main Street United Methodist Church on the corner of Main Street and Second Street.

The Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund has been sponsoring the Thanksgiving service for many years. Donations are received at the service in the form of an offering which helps sponsor the Relief Fund.

Clergy of the different churches of our area will be conducting different parts of the service. Choirs from several of the churches will perform.

Among them will be the choirs of Main Street United Methodist Church and the Children's Choir of Valena C. Jones United Methodist Church. Fr. Mike Suchaarski of St. Augustine Seminary will deliver the message.

Refreshments will be served in the new multi-purpose building at Main Street Methodist. This building was just recently completed, and this will be only the second time for it to be used. The public is invited to come to the service and stay to view the new facility.

The Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund helps provide for people in times of emergency. It is sponsored primarily by United Way of South Mississippi. Other donations come from individuals and area churches.

Each month one of the pastors of the area takes the responsibility of distributing the funds as they are available. The Hancock County Sheriff's Department handles the fund on weekends and when the person in need is from out of town.

While it is called the community Thanksgiving service, this event actually draws from churches all over the county.

Diamondhead play nets $1,200 for needy

BY JIMMIE BREWER

The Diamondhead Woman's Club sponsored a play Friday night raising in excess of $1,200. The money will be used to benefit needy families in the community this Christmas.

The play, choreographed and directed by Missy Marshall, included scenes from Annie, Grease, Cats, Funny Girl and Les Miserables.

The actors and actresses, made up of mostly Diamondhead residents, were nothing short of brilliant in their acting debuts. The event entertained the crowd of 250 for the entire play.

Founder and president Terrie Downie commented, "The play was a huge success. Marshall did a wonderful job of directing the play, which went off without a hitch."

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

The best health care

By the same token, that same passion concerning a universal, infinitely more crucial health care of all is noteworthy by its absence. Or have you noticed others getting fired up about the health care security plan of Jesus Christ?

How many of the tens of millions of American citizens who have discussed, complained, screamed and cried about health care, or the lack of it, took a long, hard look at the body-covered barge and asked themselves about eternal health care?

Typically, people get all bent out of shape about casinos, disasters, crime, scandals, the seamy side of life, their security, their pocketbook and self-interest. Not a few, more because of money than health, are gung ho on health care.

One can virtually taste the frustration in the words of Jesus as he observed people pursuing secondary things and ignoring the primary, the necessary. The best health plan, of course, must be holistic, embracing the whole human being.

Intensely and continuously engaged in physical healing more than any other person in the world's history, Jesus nonetheless went out of his way to promote his universal health care plan which spans time and eternity.

"Is not life more than food and the body more than clothing... Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be given you besides" (Mt. 6:25, 33).

Jesus does not ask very much of us. Encouraging us to use doctors and see about our corporal well-being, he urges us to get the full health plan, to partake of his water becoming a "spring of water welling up to eternal life" (Jn. 4: 14).

The best health care plan? Politicians, open your Bibles. Held high in Bill Clinton's hand as he touted his health care plan, the plastic card read: "Health Security," then, under the Great Seal of the U.S., "A.R. Jones 123 45 6789," finally at the bottom, "United States of America."

Dominating the entire left quarter of the local paper's front page, the white-hot political item of health care reform was juxtaposed with a momentarily hotter bit of news.

All the rest of the front page was blanketed by pictures, charts and descriptions of the worst accident in the history of Amtrak. These were two totally different stories; yet, so much of each story keeps rotating back to the same question.

That question is the burning issue constantly fumbled back and forth between conservatives and liberals, Democrats and Republicans: What is the best health plan?

How loaded that question is, most politicians may never know; for it goes far beyond unemployment, disability, skyrocketing hospital costs and catastrophic illness.

The sheet-covered, piteous bodies of the Amtrak disaster, lying so still across a barge deck on Bayou Canot in Alabama, bore mute but powerful witness to that question's parameters which reach through our lives into the realm of death.

It was the side-by-side, front-page expose of that barge and that credit card which brought the question out in bold relief. What, really, is the best health plan?

The passion fired by the whole health care discussion in the newspapers, in magazines, on radio, on television, at home and in the street demonstrates beyond a doubt how much a priority health care is to Jane and John Q. Public.

Board attorney Lucien Gex said "just because the city lays water and sewerage lines does not make the city liable or responsible for maintaining it."

BILLS

In a vote of 3-1, with Weidman voting against the matter, the aldermen agreed to pay a $1,592 bill to B & R Construction for the installation of two gas service lines near the new Shoney's Restaurant.

Weidman said the original agreement was to allow no more than $1,000 for gas, water and sewerage expenses.

Frilot said the board agreed to allow $1,500 for deposits. "Please do not confuse one thing with another," she said.

Weidman insisted that the agreement was that all utilities would be covered by $1,000.

"We make the citizens pay, why not this private organization?" Weidman asked.

Said Frilot, "We do this for all our customers." She added that the money would be made back much quicker in the long run from Shoney's.

Weidman also voted no in accepting a total bid of $88,286 from Jerry's Plumbing Company for a sewerage forceline.

Frilot said the engineer had predicted a cost around $127,300.

Weidman said the bid opening procedure was not done properly, as they were opened by the engineer and utility conductor prior to the board meeting, rather than during the board meeting.

Gex said there was no requirement that bids had to be opened in the presence of a governing body. He also said this had been done in the past so bids could be reviewed and recommended to the board.

STREET LIGHTS

The board tabled a motion to install a street light on St. Anthony Street and rejected a motion to install one on Tide Street.

The board approved alderman Curtis Colson's recommendation for a street light on Dufor Street, as the next light is at least 500-ft. away.

The board also approved Weidman's request for a street light at the corner of Beverly and Spruce streets.

Colson voted no on the matter, as he said it was the board's policy to install lights at least 500 ft. apart; the next street light from that corner was located 450 ft. away.

The mayor recommended the city approve $6,000 in repairs to convert a manhole to a small lift station, as the cost of new one would be some $50,000.

The board approved the matter 3-1, with Weidman voting no.

"I vote no and I vote no in this perpetration, too," Weidman said.

In other matters, the board approved the annual Waveland Festival of Lights on Dec. 6; National Home Care Week the week of Nov. 28; and the recommendations of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The annual Community Thanksgiving service will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Main Street United Methodist Church, Bay St. Louis.

The special service is sponsored by Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund. Clergy of the different churches of the area will be conducting different parts of the service.

Among the choirs to participate will be the Main Street United Methodist Church and the Children's Choir of Valena C. Jones Methodist Church.

This will be a time for you to also see the new multi-purpose building of the Main Street United Methodist Church, as refreshments will be served there following the Thanksgiving service.

A special collection will be taken for the Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund, which helps to provide for people in times of emergency. The organization is primarily funded by the United Way of South Mississippi. Other donations come from area churches.

Each month one of the pastors of the area churches takes the responsibility of distributing the funds as they are available.

The pastors receive assistance from the Hancock County Sheriff's office on weekends.

I am hoping there will be a church full of area residents for the Thanksgiving service.

To be an American and reside in America, we have plenty to be thankful for.

It looks like there may be a bill in the State Legislature this coming session that will raise the legal age to 16 for a resident to obtain a driver's license in Mississippi.

Mississippi always seems to be last on every list, and it appears we will be the last state to raise the age from 15 to 16.

Over the years many bills have been introduced only to die in committee without a hearing.

This coming session there appears to be several support groups who will be pushing to have the bill out of committee and passed.

Level-headed education

The state College Board met last week to discuss a long-range plan for Mississippi's public universities — a plan to improve undergraduate education.

The solution proposed — require professors to spend more time in the classroom by making them teach a minimum number of hours per week. Not a bad plan for public higher education... but there seems to be a more significant problem.

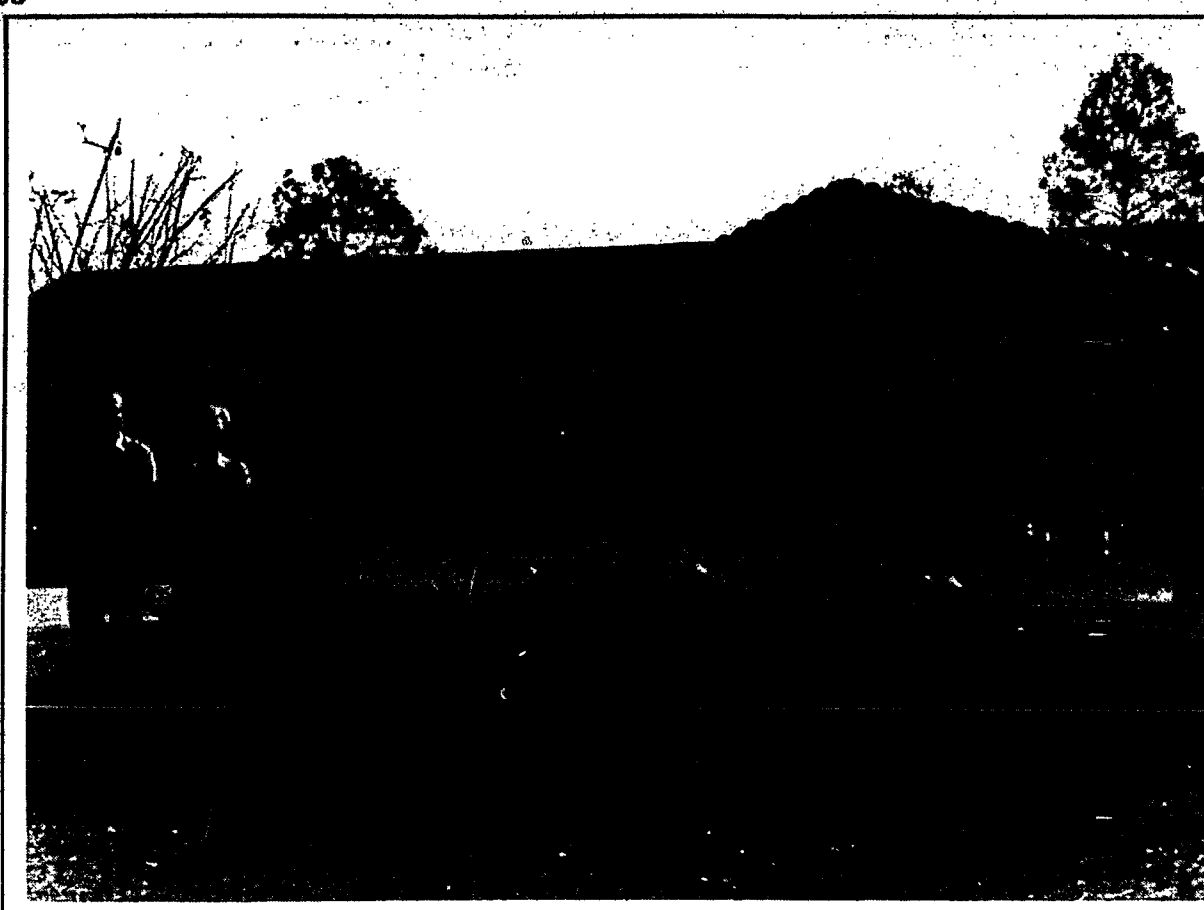

The problem of undergraduate higher education is not just that professors need to spend more time in the classroom. A greater problem is that college professors are teaching college-level material to ill-prepared students who come from Mississippi's public high schools.

Mississippi's public high school seniors are not prepared for the jump to college education. Many lack basic skills in reading, writing and math — the essentials to continue in higher education.

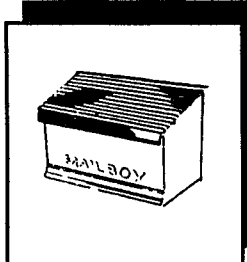

Secondary education in the state must be looked at before college professors can be blamed. How can a college professor take a student to a higher level if the student has not grasped the preceding level?

It's time to get level-headed about Mississippi's public education system.

Special award

The Victory Baptist Church in Standard Community received the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's rural Clean and Beautiful Award for the month of November. Making the presentation to the pastor's wife from left, are, Hancock Supervisor Howard Lizana, education committee chairman; Ruth Brooke, committee member; and Kathy Moore, wife of pastor Rick Moore. To encourage beautification efforts, the Chamber's beautification committee presents two Clean and Beautiful Awards each month to a deserving business, industry, association or church for exceptional efforts in beautification of their grounds. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ethics of NAFTA vote 'buying' questioned

To the Editor:

I am in a state of quandary at this point. For days each time I heard a newscast on the radio or television, there was all this talk about NAFTA.

With all the words uttered by the newscasters, White House spokespeople, debates, etc. there was very little information about the real "meat" of the subject — just what does NAFTA really mean? Nobody seemed to explain too many of the details.

The one thing that has really bothered me is all the "deals," horse-trading (as some have termed it), "promises," special protection of crops, goods, etc., by the White House.

After the election in New Jersey there were many cries of outrage from the White House down through the ranks about the alleged vote suppression. Would someone be so kind and explain to me the moral difference in vote suppression and the actions by the Administration in securing the needed votes for the passage of NAFTA?

Sincerely,
Juanita P. Brinsmade

House and Senate reach agreement on Defense Spending

Two-point-six billion dollars for the construction of three DDG-51 Aegis destroyers, $197 million to provide loan guarantees for commercial shipbuilding, and a full 2.2 percent military pay raise was approved by the House and Senate Defense Authorization conference committee, announced U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor.

The committee is sending the Defense bill to the full House and Senate for final approval.

"I am extremely pleased with the final outcome of this year's defense bill; especially my colleagues' support of the national shipbuilding initiative, which I introduced earlier this year," said Taylor, a member of the House Armed Services Committee. "In light of our nation's continued defense drawdown, the entire state of Mississippi fared exceptionally well."

To foster economic strength of U.S. shipyards, Taylor's shipbuilding initiative will authorize $50 million for research and development of shipbuilding and vessel technology, $147 million in loan guarantees for construction of ships and $25 million in loan guarantees for shipyard modernization. The defense conversion assistance is expected to generate more than $2 billion in shipbuilding construction projects.

"As our nation's shipbuilders make the transition from naval to commercial construction this defense conversion program will reduce some of the risk, thereby encouraging America's shipyards to invest in commercial shipbuilding techniques," Taylor said.

In regard to the three Aegis Destroyers authorized, Taylor said Ingall's Shipbuilding in Pascagoula has a good shot at getting a majority of the contracts. The shipbuilder is only one of two yards in the country that build the DDG-51 class destroyer.

The conference report also includes $990 million for national Guard and Reserve equipment. The funds will be used to purchase 16 C-130 aircraft, simulation equipment, night vision equipment, tactical radios, and extend the service-life of medium tactical trucks.

"As our nation's active-duty troop strength decreases we are going to depend more heavily on Mississippi's and the nation's Guard and Reserve units in the future. Therefore, I believe our citizen-soldiers should be equipped with the best military gear available," Taylor said.

The bill also included $58 million to assist school districts that are entitled to Impact Aid. Impact aid is vital to many of South Mississippi's school districts which are reimbursed by the federal government for educating children of military parents.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

Bob Moses returns to state with 'Algebra Project'

Only a miracle kept Bob Moses from being killed during the early 1960s when he was trying to get black Mississippians on the voter rolls in some of the toughest counties in Southwest Mississippi.

The studious, soft-spoken, Harvard-educated former New York mathematics teacher had his skull cracked, was thrown into jail, and put on numerous death lists by angry whites. And while several local blacks with whom he worked were murdered, somehow Moses survived.

After arriving in McComb in July, 1961 as a young field worker for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), Moses launched the state's first organized black voter registration campaign, working in Pike, Amite and Waltham counties.

When Moses began holding meetings and motivating docile local blacks to go down to the courthouse and try to register, word spread like wildfire throughout the area of this new threat to white supremacy. His presence brought a torrent of harassment by police and angry whites.

"Where's Moses, where's Moses?" white citizens chanted outside the McComb city hall where 100 young blacks were being held after staging a prayer-in. At the Liberty Courthouse, where Moses had taken a group of blacks to seek registration, a white hoodlum pummeled Moses with the butt of a knife while authorities stood by, not lifting a hand.

His Southwest voter registration drive had to be abandoned within a few months, and after few blacks had been put on the voter rolls. In the summer of 1962, Moses launched a new drive in the Delta, primarily in Bolivar, Leflore, Holmes, Sunflower, Coahoma and Washington counties.

Again, the violent resistance by whites, and constant harassment of workers by police caused Moses to call off the Delta drive, and search for a new voting offensive which would focus national attention on the deprivation of civil rights in Mississippi.

Teaming with wealthy white New York liberal Allard Lowenstein, Moses was the mastermind behind the 1964 "Freedom Summer" which brought 1,000 students, most of them middle class whites from Eastern colleges, into Mississippi to live among blacks, assist them in registering and conduct "freedom schools" for young and illiterate blacks.

Historian Neil McMillan called it "easily the most spectacular and sustained single event in recent civil rights history," providing dramatic exposure through the national press of Mississippi's institutional denial of voting by blacks.

An outgrowth of the summer effort was the creation of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, which gave blacks a vehicle to challenge Mississippi's all-white Democratic Party delegation in the 1964 Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City.

Although the MFDP failed to unseat the white regulars, it won partial recognition by the convention, and precipitated a new party policy that no all-white delegation would be seated in the future. Moses became a thorn in the side of the National Democratic Party leadership at the convention when he led an attempted "sit-in" to fill the seats of the state's regulars, who walked out over the MFDP being given recognition.

After the civil rights movement in Mississippi had begun to mature in the 1970s, Moses went back East, then to Africa to teach, and back to Massachusetts to enmesh himself in the world of academe, still deeply interested in the empowerment of grass roots black people.

Now he's on a new mission to help blacks develop the tools of knowledge, especially in mathematics, as a weapon of freedom. His work has brought Moses back to Mississippi in recent months to spread what he calls the "Algebra Project" in classrooms, especially in the Delta.

Recently, Moses was in Jackson to talk about his new project, and visit with some of his old friends from the civil rights days. His mathematics experiment, said Moses, has a legacy in the movement.

"One thing we learned then was that meetings were a tool for empowerment. The classroom is also a meeting place. And, we've found that algebra, of all things, can also be a tool to economic empowerment," he said.

Young blacks, he said, today "must take math as seriously as we took voting back then" in order to find economic freedom.

Sweet dreams

A nightcap can cost you a night's sleep

The relaxing after dinner nightcap you enjoy can cause you to lose sleep in the early morning hours, according to physicians and therapists at The Sleep Disorders Center of Mississippi at Mississippi Baptist Medical Center.

"Alcohol disturbs the normal stages of sleep required for a good night's rest," said Dr. Bill Frazier, medical director.

Since the center opened five years ago, nearly 2,000 sleep studies, or polysomnograms, have been conducted to diagnose sleep disturbances.

The most frequent diagnosis at the center has been obstructive sleep apnea, a potentially life-threatening ailment often characterized by loud snoring, choking or gasping during sleep. As much as seven percent of the U.S. population suffers from sleep apnea, a condition aggravated by alcohol consumption.

If you've been having trouble sleeping through the night, it could be that food, drinks or drugs are causing interruptions in your normal sleeping patterns.

To help improve the quality of your sleep, Baptist's sleep disorders staff offers the following tips:

— First, avoid heavy meals just before bedtime. All that extra digestive activity can keep you from relaxing fully.

— Second, stay away from beverages containing caffeine after 4 p.m. Coffee, most cola drinks and even iced tea can keep you up at night.

— Third, avoid alcohol after dinner. When its depressant effect wears off in the middle of the night, you may wake up without having gone through the normal sleep cycle that's necessary for rejuvenation.

— Finally, use sleeping pills sparingly. Although drugs can help temporarily, prolonged use can actually increase difficulty sleeping.

COOKING UP A STORM

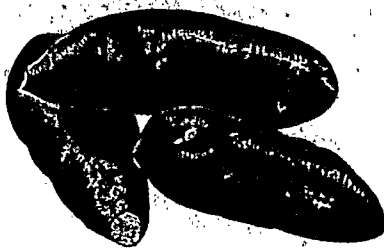

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Although times and customs — and foods as well — have changed mightily through the years, some traditions have remained constant, such as the Thanksgiving turkey, center of the holiday feast for many of us.

And, although its symbolism has remained relatively unchanged since the era earliest days of our country, the bird itself has certainly changed from those earliest days from the wild specimen of the days of the founding fathers. The turkey has been bred into the succulent, broad-breasted bird of today, with a size for every table and appetites, it seems.

If great-great-great (how many "greats?") grandmother could suddenly come back to Thanksgiving dinner, she would never recognize the piece de resistance of our modern feast as the same rugged fowl which she worked to make tender for her dinner, would she?

I won't presume to tell you how to cook your noble bird, or what "stuffing" to use (oyster-pecan-French bread my preference) or corn bread or pecan-riced, or sausage or whatever else you might choose. But, this is the Southland, so let's be sure to serve those wonderful, sugar-sweet yams, their orange-hued flesh like the setting sun. No ordinary sweet potato, this! Of course, sweet potatoes are delicious also, when you can't get yams!

I like them candied, all syrupy, and I like them as a soufflé, and I like them with marshmallows. And, when I'm extra-energetic, I'll even cook them and serve in orange cups, which I have laboriously scooped out and scalloped, although the scalloped edges usually turn out rather oddly uneven!

Incidentally, the words "yam" and "sweet potato" are used interchangeably by many. The yam is usually smaller and deeper-fleshed than the sweet potato and came to us by way of Africa, while the sweet potato is native to the Western Hemisphere.)

If you're looking for a slightly "different" way to serve your sweets for Thanksgiving, you might try:

A new spin on an old favorite — yams

YAM-SWEET POTATO HONEY BALLS

2½ cups cooked, mashed yams or sweet potatoes (may use canned, if you must)
Dash pepper, salt
5 Tbsp. melted butter
1½ cup miniature marshmallows
1½ cup honey
1 cup chopped pecans
Combine the potatoes, salt and pepper with 2 tablespoons of the butter, and stir in the marshmallows. Chill. When well chilled, shape the potato mixture into balls, using 1/4 cup for each. Combine 2 tablespoons of the butter with the honey in a small, heavy skillet, and add or dip the potato balls one at a time, swiftly coating each with the glaze, then roll in the pecans.

Place in a lightly greased baking dish, drizzle with the remaining tablespoon of butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. (6 to 8 servings)

Fight winter bulge a few minutes at a time

If people hibernated like bears, a layer or two of extra body fat might do us some good in the chilly season.

But, through the bleak, windswept days and barren, icy nights of winter, life in human civilization goes on, and so does the excess poundage. Factor in the perils of the palate posed by the Yuletide season, and airplanes may be circling for a landing above your waistline by next March.

It doesn't have to be that way, says Dr. Stanley Brown, assistant professor of exercise science and leisure management at the University of Mississippi.

"There is a definite trend of weight gain during the winter months," Brown said. "Many people tend to eat more while their activity level drops at the same time."

Maintaining a trim figure isn't the time-consuming, physically draining chore many people think it is, Brown added.

"You can do far less exercise than you think and still keep your weight down in the winter. It doesn't even necessarily have to be very strenuous exercise."

Any type of physical activity is healthful, but aerobic exercise — such as walking or jogging — is best for weight reduction, Brown said. For those who can't spare half an hour a day for exercise, several five-minute periods of aerobic activity throughout the day will suffice.

"There is a cumulative effect for a person who is physically active for five minutes in the morning and five minutes in the ups and sit-ups, do little for weight control, Brown warned. "There is no such thing as spot reducing. You can't do sit-ups and hope to reduce your waist size. Calisthenics improve muscular endurance and flexibility and tone particular areas of the body, but they don't expend a lot of calories. Only aerobic activity will do that."

Still, aerobic exercise alone won't produce a trim, sleek body. Diet remains as important as ever, and the rules still haven't changed.

"Rich desserts with a lot of fats make it a lot easier to gain weight," Brown said. "I know it's hard during the holidays, but try to limit desserts."

Substitute fresh fruits, such as grapes, raisins or strawberries, for the traditional holiday sweets, he advised. Fresh vegetables and grain products, which are filling and relatively low in calories, also should be added to holiday meals in a greater abundance than the high-fat foods.

Finally, a daily regimen of five or six smaller meals — rather than three large meals — also keeps the weight off, Brown advised. "Keep your stomach full, but not with caloric foods. You'll satisfy your desire for food but won't gain weight."

afternoon, if it adds up to about 15 or 20 minutes a day."

A brisk stroll through the park in sub-freezing temperatures may be out of the question, but there are alternatives. Many people walk for fitness in local malls. Stationary bikes, stair-climbing and rowing machines are other indoor activities that burn off fats while improving the body's cardiovascular fitness as well.

Calisthenics, such as push-

Cranberry Bread

Vegetable oil spray* ¾ cup orange juice
1 cup whole-wheat flour 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup all-purpose flour 1 egg
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar ½ cup vegetable oil (canola or safflower)
1 tablespoon baking powder 2 tablespoons vanilla
½ teaspoon salt 2 cups fresh cranberries, chopped
¼ teaspoon ground allspice

Preheat oven to 350° F. Lightly spray two 7½x3½-inch loaf pans with vegetable oil.

Combine first six dry ingredients in medium bowl and set aside. In a small bowl, combine remaining ingredients and mix well. Make a well in dry ingredients and pour in liquid mixture. Stir just until blended.

Pour into prepared loaf pans and bake 45 to 50 minutes, or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pans and cool on a wire rack.

Makes 2 loaves for 24 1-slice servings.

*Do not use vegetable oil spray near an open flame or a heat source. Read and follow directions on can before using.

Roast Turkey

1 turkey (about 12 pounds) 1 medium onion, chopped
½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper 2 carrots, chopped
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning ½ cup chopped fresh parsley
3 stalks celery, chopped ¼ cup acceptable margarine, melted*

Thaw turkey if necessary; remove parts from cavities. Rinse and pat dry. Preheat oven to 425° F.

Sprinkle pepper and poultry seasoning inside body cavity of turkey. Place vegetables and parsley inside cavity. Truss. Place on a rack in a roasting pan. Place meat thermometer in thigh, making sure tip does not rest against bone. Brush bird with melted margarine. Bake 15 minutes and then reduce heat to 325° F. Cook turkey, basting often, until meat thermometer reaches 185° F. Turkey should rest 15 to 20 minutes before it is carved. Remove skin before eating.

Makes 12 servings.

*Select margarines that have no more than 2 grams of saturated fat per tablespoon.

Christmas trees

Abundant supply keeps prices depressed

By Bethany Waldrop
MSU Ag Communications
Mississippi Christmas tree growers have endured almost five years of depressed prices, while consumers have enjoyed choosing and cutting their own trees at low costs. For state producers, 1993 doesn't hold much promise as a better year.

Overproduction of trees nationally again this year is hurting state producers.

"Nationwide, 50 million trees will be produced, but just 36 million will be sold," said Dr. Stephen Dicke, area extension forester in Raymond. "The surplus keeps the prices down — it's good for consumers and bad for producers."

Because of the overproduction at the retail level, most state Christmas tree producers stick to choose-and-cut farms, rather than trying to compete with surplus trees brought in from the northern states.

"Mississippi growers have kept prices to consumers stable over the past three years, and have continually improved the quality of their trees to stay competitive," Dicke said.

"State-grown trees offer high quality and stable prices — they're really one of the best deals around."

The state's Christmas tree crop looks good this year, despite unusual growing conditions.

"Growing conditions were not the best this year, with the soggy spring and droughty summer, but the cool, moist fall has helped," Dicke said. "I haven't heard any reports of severe weather-related problems for Christmas trees this year."

In Mississippi, there are 150 Christmas tree growers spread across 50 counties. Last year, more than 200,000 Mississippi-grown trees were sold for a total of almost $5 million.

The main species sold in the state include Virginia pine, Leyland cypress, Eastern redcedar and Deodar cedar. Deodar cedars and Leyland cypress often are used as landscape trees, and often are planted outdoors after the holidays, Dicke said.

Many families are "coming back to the farm" to enjoy the experience of choosing and cutting a tree. "About half of the people coming to tree farms own artificial trees, but they miss the fragrance, natural beauty and pleasant family experience of finding their own tree," Dicke said. "If this trend continues, it could have a positive impact on state Christmas tree farmers."

Since recycling has become a hot topic nationwide, most larger communities are finding uses for cut Christmas trees after the holiday season.

"Many large communities are shredding the discarded trees for landscape mulch, while coastal communities are using the discarded trees on the coastline for erosion control," Dicke said. "Discarded trees also can be sunk into fish ponds to provide cover and improve habitat for fish."

For information about the tree farm nearest you, or the location of Mississippi-grown Christmas tree lots, contact your county extension office.

Holiday shopping tips that can save on credit costs

By Janet K. Lukens
Area Consumer Money
Management Specialist

As we approach the holiday shopping season, shoppers should use wise credit practices that can stretch dollars and help pay bills off more quickly. If you are one of the many busy shoppers, follow these five tips.

* Give yourself a present — shop around for a lower interest rate. The credit card market is very competitive — over 6,000 banks and other issuers are offering credit cards and they want you as a customer.

Many are offering the lowest interest rates in over 20 years. Your own bank may issue cards at a lower rate and they just haven't told you about it.

Call your bank and ask for a lower rate; if they don't give it to you then shop around for the best rate you can get. When it comes to credit card costs; "playing the Scrooge" can pay.

* Don't get hooked on cash advances. Cash advances seem convenient, but watch out. Interest accrues from the moment you take the advance and there is usually a special transaction fee.

One cash advance could cost you the money you were saving for that gift for your niece in Tuscaloosa.

* Look out for theft and fraud. Keep track of your cards.

When you use a card, watch the transaction carefully and make sure the clerk returns your card, receipts and carbons.

Tear up the carbons and save the receipts so you can check them carefully against your statements.

Be careful who you give your card number to — don't write it on checks or give your number out over the phone unless you initiate the call. Don't allow theft to ruin the holidays.

* Watch out for minimum payments. One of the new areas where consumers are using credit is in supermarkets. Here is an example of what groceries can cost if you make the minimum payment.

If you spend $50 every week on groceries for a year ($2,600 total) with a card charging 18% interest, during the first year the interest on those groceries would cost an additional $223.63. (Minimum payment is based on 1/36 of the outstanding balance or $20, whichever is larger.)

If you then decide not to use that card anymore and pay off the remaining balance by continuing to pay only the minimum required each month, it will take you 12 years and 3 months to pay off the balance.

The interest on the groceries you bought would ultimately cost you $2,539 — nearly doubling your grocery bill! Don't spend all of 1994 paying off interest on groceries bought in 1993.

* Avoid skip payment offers. With many of these plans, the interest piles up even when you skip the payment. So don't become the holiday turkey — pay down those bills as much as you can and as fast as you can.

TWO-TO-GO MODEL 415-00
Double your fun. This black beauty takes two with real class. The adjustable seat is a special feature that accommodates two people. The flexible hand-hold is convenient for passengers of many sizes and the padded nerf bars give the riders a feeling of being part of the machine. That seat has real automotive styling with its high back comfort and pleated cover over a dense foam cushion. There's a lot of special engineering from the passenger's foot guard to drop frame and wide track design. The parking brake is unique, too. It sets easily. You start the engine, get in and a simple foot tap releases the brake, and your off. A great safety idea from Manco.

Methodists to consecrate building Sunday

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

A consecration of the new multi-purpose building of the Main Street United Methodist Church, Bay St. Louis, will be held Sunday, according to Van Carpenter, pastor.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held in February by the youth of the church.

The first event to be held in the multi-purpose building, which will seat 160, will be a Harvest Dinner following the 11 a.m. service.

It will also be a celebration Sunday for the completion of the 1994 stewardship campaign.

Numerous activities planned for the building include support groups, special dinners, activities for all age levels and meeting of existing organizations in the church.

Main Street United Methodist will also host the annual Community Thanksgiving Service on Tuesday at 7 p.m.

The Thanksgiving Service is sponsored by the community's churches.

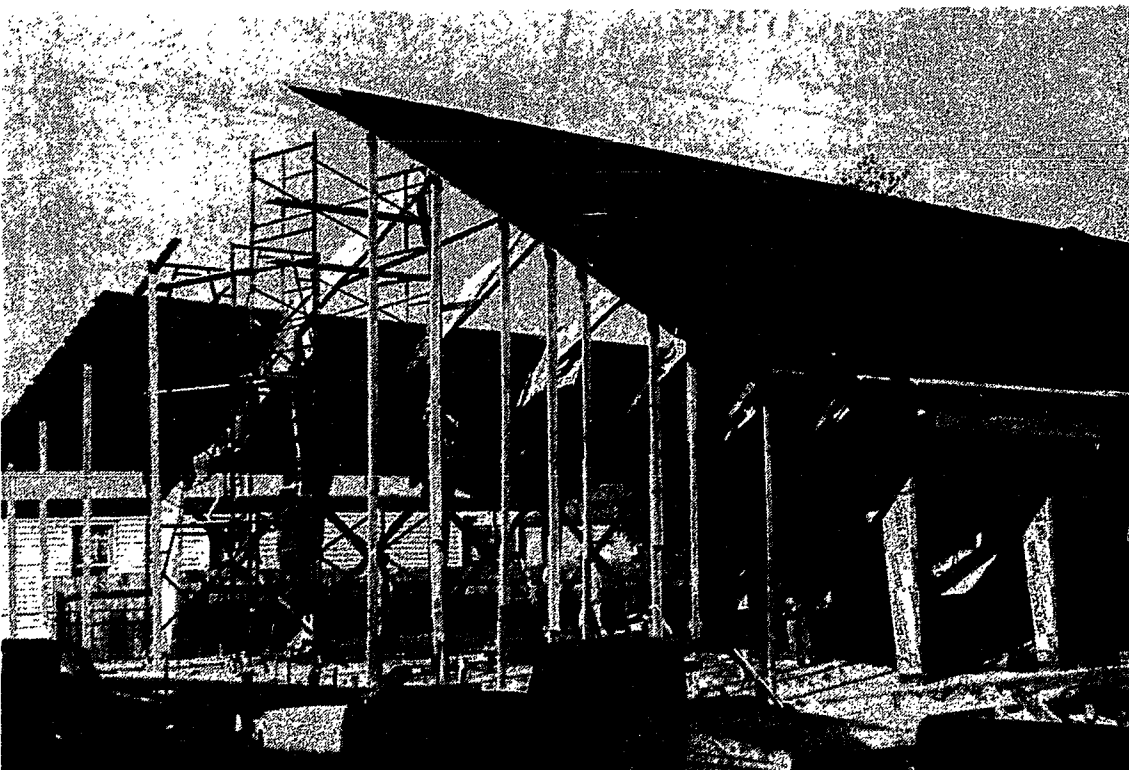

Following the service, refreshments will be served.

Dedication for the new building will be held at a later date, Carpenter said.

Three schools compete in Stock Market Game

Future stockbrokers in Hancock County are watching the market to win the 1993-94 Stock market Game, sponsored by the American Enterprise Center of the Mississippi Economic Council.

The statewide game pits teams of students against each other and the market forces, as each team invests an imaginary $100,000. The winning team in the competition is determined by the greatest profit made on the initial investment.

"This competition introduces students to the economic impacts that affect the stock market and teaches them how to successfully watch the market for investment opportunities," said Robin Robinson, chairman of MEC's Free Enterprise Committee.

The game is played twice a year, once in the fall semester and again in the spring, with grades 5-9 competing in the junior division and grades 10-12 competing in the senior division. Over 500 teams are competing in this year's game, an increase of over 30 percent from last year.

Faculty advisors in Hancock County are Michael G. Gemelli of St. Stanislaus High School, Kimberly Saucier of Hancock High School, and Angele Luffey of Coast Episcopal Elementary.

For more information on the game, contact Peggy Howard at the MEC office at 969-0022.
